

NEYERS VINEYARDS

2007 Chardonnay B. 'Thieriot Vineyard' – In 2007, this dramatic vineyard, almost 1500 feet above the Pacific, yielded barely one ton of grapes per acre. The fruit was ideal -- completely mature, and perfectly balanced, with enough natural acidity to keep the wine fresh and lively for years to come. We've drunk up most of our old bottles of Thieriot Vineyard Chardonnay, but a friend wrote us not long ago to report that a recently opened bottle of the 1997 was still '...youthful and luxurious'. This one will be around that long as well.
